00:53:54 Alicia Richins: Can you share the link to the reports the Professor is referencing?

00:54:00 Dr Sebastian Runguma: Great if you can share the slides/report please. Thank you.

00:54:08 IISD: @Bayu_Ilham_Pribadi - we will ask our presenters if we can share their slides :)

00:54:16 Kevin Cawley: "Mandatory renewable energy targets"

Is this the same as "end use of fossil fuels?"

Why not say so?

00:54:19 Bayu Ilham Pribadi: cool, thanks

00:54:29 Rainer Hauser: Salud para todos from Chile. We have to put an end of Fossil fuels and extractive industries...

00:54:33 Eleonora Bonaccorsi: Here is the link to the report Professor Kanie is mentioning: GSDR 2023 <https://sdgs.un.org/gedr/gedr2023>

00:55:47 Nicole Karsies: @Eleonora Bonaccorsi, thank you for the report link!

00:55:56 rupinder chandel: excellent presentation

00:56:45 Meryciana Didas: my it dont have sound

00:56:50 Paulus Rahmat: Excellent presentation. Please share the slides presentation at paul@vivatinternational.org

00:56:52 Noura Kayal: Thank you for the good presentation

00:56:59 Bayu Ilham Pribadi: awesome

00:57:01 Meryciana Didas: what is happening

00:57:05 Treasures Uchegbu Treasures Uchegbu: Well-done Prof

00:57:06 Jemba Micheal Senkole: Thank you Proff

00:57:07 Nicole Karsies: Thank you for that insightful presentation!

00:57:11 Luz Rooney: Prof. Kanie, thank you for giving us a preview of your report. Why is there so much emphasis on "behavioral change," and so little reference is being made to the polluters? How can this report have "mandating electric vehicles?" This is not realistic for developing countries. Thank you.

00:57:39 Luiza Hoxhaj: Very insightful presentation. Thank you Prof.!

00:57:43 EDITH SILAKO SITATI: Thank you prof, well ,report

00:57:46 Jalal uddin Shoaib: Amazing. thanks

00:57:49 rupinder chandel: Prof. Norichika thanks for present.

00:58:00 Bayu Ilham Pribadi: Thanks prof!

00:58:23 Danijela Injac: Thank You professor Norichika

00:59:20 Tania Paratian: Thank you so much for this great piece of work Prof. Nirichika! Any special focus on Business Action that could be needed to accelerate SDGs implementation?

00:59:33 Joni Roberts: Thank you! It's nice to have the professor talk through the report versus just reading it.

01:00:53 Jacqueline Wong: Thank you Prof Norichika-san. The 17 SDGs are cross-cutting and interlinked. For example, NCDs are heavily clustered in people with low socioeconomic status and are an important cause of medical impoverishment. They thereby exacerbate economic inequities within societies.

As such, NCDs are a barrier to achieving: SDG 1 - reducing poverty; SDG 2 - zero hunger; SDG 4 – education; SDG 5 - gender equality; and SDG 10 - reduced inequalities. Productivity gains from preventing and managing NCDs will contribute to SDG 8 - decent work and economic growth; SDG 11 - sustainable cities and communities; and SDG 12 - sustainable production and consumption; offer clear opportunities to reduce the NCD burden and to create sustainable and healthy cities.

01:03:59 Geremias Armando Carlos: I also appreciate the presentation and I can see that there is a lot to be done and always when we speak of transformation challenges are there. I wish to understand better about the action to make this work. may be with the sharing of the materials it can be ease . thanks from Tanzania Geremias

01:04:18 Kenneth Stokes:The World Sustainability Forum has been advocating for a UN General Assembly intergenerational resolution and Declaration on Human Responsibility. 01:06:59 Nigus Shibeshi: All todays presentations' are really exciting and have learned a lot and getting update on SDG action needed.

01:07:11 Nicole Karsies: @Oezge Aydogan, thank you for bringing the shift to focus also on future generations, that is a core value of the Anishinaabeg People of North America - asking how this will impact the next 7 Generations. Thank you for your presentation!

You should see a button for that in the bottom of the Zoom window.

01:09:00 CommonMan Suresh Gupta Mittapally: congratulations to all participants from CommonMan Suresh Gupta Mittapally

01:09:10 Luz Rooney: @Aydogan, what has been the biggest challenge to advance the SDGs not counting COVID-19? How does the scenario look from the regional point of view? Thank you.

01:09:33 Jamie Ong: @Elysa Vaillancourt thank you for information n the virtual assembly! Is there an agenda you can share, please?

01:09:37 Christine Cuomo: Thank you for bringing up values and ethics. It seems there could be much more intentional involvement of philosophers and environmental ethicists in the process of developing pragmatic approaches to encouraging and building the values and ethics central to the SDG goals. Many philosophers are working on these issues, but given the typical emphasis on stem disciplines, our work in the humanities is often not given sufficient representation. Chris Cuomo, cuomo@uga.edu

01:09:38 Neelam Bhardwaj: absolutely right

01:09:51 Neelam Bhardwaj: we are only fighting the fire?

01:09:55 Dr Sebastian Runguma: Thank you Oezge. Indeed, values and a facilitative value system matters a lot in global development today.

01:10:25 Jacqueline Wong: Our young people will be the older people tomorrow. By this decade, there will be more 60s than 15 years olds. This is fiscally unsustainable. Our job now -- to rebuild a world that is going to support our young all the way to be healthy, hopeful and prosperous.

01:11:07 Treasures Uchegbu Treasures Uchegbu: 🙌 truth @Wong

01:11:26 Helena Lindemark: "Next time" will be too late. So, we have to do all we can.

01:11:31 Mónica Miguel Lago: The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development is a data and evidence-driven and country-led process, where Local and Regional authorities will play a fundamental role. It is really key to take into account the importance to elaborate a 2030 implementation strategy (at local /regional levels) which will be an opportunity to implement a robust, participatory approach to create a long-term plan that addresses current and future challenges. We firmly consider such strategies are fundamental pillars to planning and implementing strategic goals for the sustainability and resilience of the cities and the integration of viable datasets is essential. With the expanding number of satellites with Free and Open data policies and global observation scenarios complemented with the private sector constellations, geospatial data can now be considered a reliable, systematic and affordable sources of monitoring data to use in the reporting of the SDGs. Mote info at <https://earsc-portal.eu/display/EOwiki/EO+Supporting+the+Sustain>

01:11:54 Gary Battell: The SDGs are brilliant. It is how we ACT and how quick and how much,

01:12:11 Daniel Rycroft: ChrisCuomo: do you follow UNESCO's work on new humanism and planetary/cosmic philosophies?

01:12:12 Mónica Miguel Lago: <https://earsc-portal.eu/display/EOwiki/EO+Supporting+the+Sustainable+Development+Goals>

01:12:16 Rob Wheeler: If we cannot achieve the SDGs by 2030 it will be game over. HLPF was a huge step down from CSD, what we need is actionable programs and agreements to be put in place to fully achieve SDGs with a full focus on how to finance their full implementation.

01:12:47 Rob Wheeler: We should be lobbying for this until it is achieved

01:12:50 Evgeniya Altukhova: Constantly making everything an emergency does not seem to spur action. Rather instills Chrononarcissism- false impression that the most important things the most critical things are happening ONLY right now. And this is just simply not true.

01:13:44 Emlyn Koster: It is unfortunately misleading, in my view, to 'blame' inadequate SDG progress on the pandemic and other crises since 2015. Rather, I think that it would be productive to confront what was inadequate about the initial Agenda 2030 in terms of its culture >> nature imbalance as well as the impracticality of 'sustainability' and inappropriateness of 'development' across all SDGs.

01:14:18 Wilhemina Quaye: I agree inclusivity in all the transformative change strategies critical and we need to be forward looking

01:14:36 Gary Battell: Interesting valid points.

01:15:17 EDITH SILAKO SITATI: hello, im happy to be on this platform and willing to learn and know more on SDGS silakoedith123@gmail.com. im learning a lot today, thanks team

01:15:25 Wilhemina Quaye: localising the SDGs with strong involvement of civil society and the youth

01:15:30 Gary Battell: I agree, transformation and greater use of the SDGs is happening.

01:15:31 Rob Wheeler: It would be good for IISD to organize an open conversation on why progress on SDGs is inadequate and what could/can be done to change this. RobWheeler22@gmail.com

01:15:33 rupinder chandel: sources of methane emissions and other GHG gases have to be controlled and need to reduced drastically to achieve SDG by 2030. Alongwith this overexploitation of underground water and water pollution needs to be controlled at root level.

01:16:02 Luiza Hoxhaj: Very important to involve local level in this process. civil society have e crucial role to play.

01:16:28 Gary Battell: but national budget holds the purse strings!

01:16:32 Dr Ernestine NGO MELHA: "Listen all voices"

01:16:32 Nicole Karsies: Thank you @Stefan Jungcurt for bringing up the importance of local engagement, as well as the need for actual change in the short term processes of looking forward to the long term goals.

01:18:07 Annik Dollacker: Thank you Stefan for your thoughts - tue there is much more localism today than 30 ys ago. And gives real hope!

01:18:15 rupinder chandel: Thanks stefan for sharing valuable information.

01:18:38 Dr. Toutou Moussa Diallo: I am concerned for the LEAST DEVELOPPED COUNTRIES. What monetary contributions are given to African countries to meet these transformative changes? Are you considering interested diasporans to become the watch dogs for their relative countries?

01:18:39 Eve Nava-Fischer: The upgrading of our skills to actually sustainably achieve the SDGs is very important and our transformative skills are very rusty in particular. What are the in depth skills of these transformative leaders, for governance? Is there a link with the Inner Development Goals Framework in the conference for every SDG? if you are interested in the IDG linkages to the SDG email me to rightbrained@protonmail.com to dig deeper into these discussions.

01:22:24 Stefan Wagner: Thank you, @Stefan Jungcurt, for highlighting the central role of Local and Regional Governemnts (LRG) in implementing SDGs. You mentioned the need for a stronger

Involvement of LRG in decision making on national and international Level (e-g. VNR) This is a request by the subnational level for a long time now. What is your proposal how this actually could happen?

01:22:42 Rob Wheeler: The limited number of seats for civil society & NGOs at HLPF is ridiculous. The UN let this happen when the Secretariat Bldg was renovated. So many ways civil society has been given less access; we need to continue to push on this problem.

01:23:43 Christine Cuomo: @Daniel Rycroft Thanks! I am familiar, but do not know of recent developments. Can you share a link or other information?

01:24:39 Daniel Rycroft: Yes I will email you Christine

01:24:56 rupinder chandel: thanks a lot.

01:24:59 Luz Rooney: Can you please share the chat with all of us? IT has a lot of great information. Thanks.

01:25:00 Gary Battell: v useful updates. Thanks

01:25:02 Ian Alvarez: Indeed, Civil society participation is the key for transformative action. At the end of the day, the legitimacy for most of gubernamental action comes from civil society.

01:30:51 Jacqueline Wong: COVID-19 showed up huge gaps that were existing prior. The pandemic exacerbated issues, concerns and challenges — on top of crises upon crises. Lessons must be learned from this. We must be prepared NOW to building capacity and resilience for future threats.
